CIA/WILLIAM CASEY

RATHER: One day after a House subcommittee report named CIA director William Casey as the likely recipient of some of Jimmy Carter's secret White House and campaign papers in 1980, something Casey says he doesn't recall, President Reagan today went out of his way to praise Casey and to be seen with him. He occasioned a scheduled ground-breaking ceremony for additional CIA offices and work space in Virginia. Speaking of CIA employees in general and Casey in particular, President Reagan called them 'an inspiration to your fellow Americans and people everywhere.'
